

Acquired aphasia: supported communication and participation

Original support worksheet | Adults with acquired aphasia | Reviewed 2026-10-10

Use fictional or appropriately de-identified notes. Write, draw, dictate or point. Not a validated measure, diagnostic test or crisis service.

Message: One topic, accessible form

Response mode: Speech, gesture, writing, pointing

Time + access: Fatigue, hearing, vision, language

Verification: Check meaning without guessing

Participation: Preference, next step, SLP handoff

Message or choice in accessible words/pictures

Response mode and access supports preferred

How meaning was verified; what remains uncertain

Next step, SLP/team contact and review

Next step: who will do what, by when, and how will we review helpfulness or harm?

New or sudden language difficulty, weakness, facial changes or other acute neurological signs require emergency medical response. Do not use this tool to assess stroke, consent validity or decisional capacity independently.