

Intellectual disability: supported choice and functional communication

Original support worksheet | Adults with intellectual disability | Reviewed 2026-10-10

Use fictional or appropriately de-identified notes. Write, draw, dictate or point. Not a validated measure, diagnostic test or crisis service.

Real options: Available, familiar, decline possible

Communication access: Preferred mode + time

Response: Words, gesture, aid, behavior

Verification: Meaning, uncertainty, no pressure

Action + review: Chosen support and experience

Decision and real available options, including decline

Preferred communication mode and support

Response and how meaning was verified

Chosen action, uncertainty and qualified follow-up

Next step: who will do what, by when, and how will we review helpfulness or harm?

Acute pain/illness, abuse, coercion or inability to remain safe needs prompt appropriate response. Do not infer consent from compliance or override refusal with a behavior-management plan.